At the beginning of the homelessness epidemic in the 1980s, Josephine Ensign was a young, white, Southern, Christian wife, mother, and nurse running a new medical clinic for the homeless in the heart of the South. Through her work and intense relationships with patients and co-workers, her worldview was shattered, and after losing her job, family, and house, she became homeless herself. In Catching Homelessness, Ensign reflects on how this work has changed her and how her work has changed through the experience of being homeless?providing a piercing look at the homelessness industry, nursing, and our country’s health care safety net.
