Black's Guide to Devonshire (Classic Reprint) A. R. Hope Moncrieff
Excerpt from Black's Guide to Devonshire

This Guide has been recast and enlarged both in size and scope. It will be found arranged upon a principle which seems to answer to the present conditions of touring. On the main routes of communication, we have, as far as possible, taken the places of chief resort as centres from which our excursions radiate in different directions. This arrangement should prove specially convenient in Devonshire, where visitors are much in the way of making their headquarters at certain popular watering-places that afford unusually ample facilities for pleasure-trips about their vicinity, or even to points at a considerable distance.

At each place we have tried to outline how may be most profitably and pleasantly spent an hour, a day, a week, or whatever time is likely to be passed there. It is possible to overload a Guide with too many details, and to confuse readers by indicating far more than they can or care to see; on the other hand, various tastes and needs have to be considered within limits of space one would often wish more elastic.
