Love! Romance! High society! Art Theft--told by the wise and witty, little cat Alba, who has her own feline affairs. Lorna, now over 60, has just fallen horribly, head-over heels, in love-with a younger man; and worse, he's involved with her best friend, Nikki. Meanwhile Nikki, an art conservator, is caught up in international art theft, prison, and other events of everyday life in Washington, D. C. Underneath this light-hearted romp lie serious issues of aging, love, betrayal, friendship, sacrifice, and glimpses into the spiritual realm for which Sophy Burnham, the visionary behind the angels phenomenon, is best known. As with her other bestsellers, just reading this inspiring book leaves you happy.

SOPHY BURNHAM, awarded "Daughter of Mark Twain," is the author of fourteen books, three New York Times bestsellers with her work translated into 26 languages. She has written award-winning plays, children's books, investigative reporting and short stories. She is best known for her spiritual writing, including A Book of Angels and The Treasure of Montségur. She has appeared on scores of TV and radio programs and spoken at venues from the IMF to St. Louis Art Museum, National Storytellers Association, churches and major conferences.
