This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text. Purchasers can download a free scanned copy of the original book (without typos) from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1812 edition. Excerpt: ...exertions to promote the cultivation of its highly fertile soil with industry and vigour, by ceasing to depress and impoverish the natives by constant injustice and continual extortion, and by avoiding in future every species of war, which, by producing a still greater depopulation, would bring destruction to the Indians and ruin to the Company. / The princes of the country, although sovereign over their own subjects, are, nevertheless, the one more, and the other less, vassals of the Company; and so far subjected to them, that the mode of succession to their thrones is regulated, and the heirs of their dignity are nominated, by the Company. The dismemberment of the empire of the Soesoehoenam, and the' possession of the sea-coasts, render the Company secure from that power once so formidable, and from the consequences of such prejudicial engagements and alliances, as might be entered into by the native princes, with European powers; and although those princes bow with reluctance to the yoke which has been imposed upon them, they are sufficiently wise to consider, that, if they were even fortunate enough to disengage themselves from their present bondage, their power has been so broken by the depopulation of the country, that, freed from the Dutch Company, they would still be obliged to yield to the first foreign nation which should have the inclination and ability to establish itself upon the island, and perhaps be reduced to a more cruel state of servitude than they now experience An instance to the contrary occurs in the last chapter, where we are informed that one of the princes of Cheriboa was deposed by the Company for misconduct towards his own subjects. under their actual taskmasters; of which they have a striking example before them in...
