The Patristic Witness of Georges Florovsky: Essential Theological Writings Georges Florovsky

This book is a collection of major articles and texts by Georges Florovsky (1893-1979), an important twentieth-century theologian, historian, ecumenist and patristic scholar. It includes representative and widely influential but now largely inaccessible writings, some newly translated, with explanatory and bibliographical notes, covering all periods of his career and divided into four major thematic sections: 1) Creation and Incarnation; 2) The Nature of Theology; 3) Ecclesiology and Ecumenism; 4) Scripture, Worship and Eschatology.

A foreword by Metropolitan Kallistos Ware presents both personal accounts of contacts with Georges Florovsky and key elements of Florovsky's theological vision, in the context of the continuing relevance of his work. The Introduction by Brandon Gallaher and Paul Ladouceur gives a theological and historical overview of Florovsky's work, relating it to trends in both modern Roman Catholic and Protestant theology and outlining his importance to contemporary ecumenism, patristics and Orthodox thought and life. The book includes explanatory notes, translation of patristic citations and an index.
