Academic & Behavioral Interventions Kristin N. Johnson Ph.D., Kristopher J. Kaase Ph.D, Jennifer R. Griffin Ph.D.
How do I manage a student or my child with behavior problems? How can I help my student or child struggling with school work? What intervention strategies really work? What are the steps of the intervention? How do I know if an intervention is being implemented correctly? This book is a culmination of the authors' experiences, practices, and research in answering these questions. This book is for all of the educators and parents who do not have access to expertise or the time to develop interventions. As practitioners who work closely with teachers, students, and others in implementing these interventions, we understand the time constraints on your daily schedule. This book provides detailed step-by-step procedures, fidelity checks, materials, and observations so that you can pick up the intervention strategy and have everything you need to put it into place.
